The effort to create electronically integrated technologies serving all units of municipal, county, and state government is a national priority. The Illinois Integrated Justice Information System (IIJIS) Implementation Board was charged with mapping a strategy and began the process for statewide information sharing. The goal of the IIJIS initiative is to improve the sharing of information throughout the Illinois justice system. Facilitating the integration efforts already taking place at the municipal and county levels is the primary way that the State promotes the electronic sharing of justice information.

The ability to access and share critical information at key decision points throughout the justice enterprise is dependent upon the passion and commitment of dedicated stakeholders making it a reality. Integration will not happen overnight, but the time is right in Illinois to bring agencies together to work toward an effective network of justice information systems and the realization of the benefits of integration. These benefits include timely and accurate information on offenders as well as reductions in redundant, inconsistent, and inaccurate criminal offender information spread throughout multiple disparate systems.

We need people throughout the State of Illinois who will pledge to support and champion this meaningful cause. We are asking that you take the time to attend this important summit on criminal justice integration in Illinois, and we welcome your input, ideas and wisdom.
